

JOURNAL'S PREDICTION ON FRANK CASE SUSTAINED

---

Supreme Court Ends
January
Term Without Handing
Down
Decision on Appeal

---

The Journal's exclusive story predicting the decision in the Frank case would not be handed down by the supreme court at its January term has been sustained.

Wednesday afternoon the court ended its January banc. The next regular banc will not occur until Monday, February 9, and unless the court decides to hold a special banc to pass on the Frank case a decision will not be handed down until the second week in February.

It is understood the Frank decision has only partly been written. After it is completed, the court may await its regular banc in February for a final consultation.

---